Session 4

Naming & Honesty

Participant workbook

Guiding question: What truth am I ready to acknowledge safely?

Use these pages to understand the process, review a worked example, practise the tools, and choose one realistic next action with support.

Personal sharing is voluntary. You may write privately, use a fictional example, pass, or stop an exercise. Use roles or initials and keep your workbook securely.

Connect before you act.

The following pages retain the page numbers of the complete participant workbook.

Important information about this peer led program

CONNECTED Addiction Recovery is a volunteer-facilitated peer education and mutual-support program. Facilitators are not acting as licensed mental-health, medical, or addiction-treatment professionals.

CONNECTED is independent of, and is not affiliated with, sponsored by, or endorsed by Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), or any other organization. We draw upon Cognitive Behavioral Therapy techniques.

Participation is voluntary. This program does not provide diagnosis, therapy, medical advice, detoxification, or crisis care, and is not a substitute for professional treatment. Seek qualified care for withdrawal, trauma, or urgent safety concerns.

Personal sharing is optional. Respect others' privacy; confidentiality cannot be guaranteed in a group setting. In an emergency, contact local emergency services.

Choice privacy and support

You may pass, write privately, use a fictional example, keep your eyes open, or stop an exercise. Do not record or photograph others or repeat identifying details. Use roles or initials in these pages. Keep this workbook securely and choose what you share; facilitators do not need to collect it.

An Anchor is a trusted, consenting support person with agreed availability and boundaries. An Anchor is not an emergency service. Chosen Connection can be spiritual, relational, community-based, or another personally meaningful source of support.

When peer support is not enough

Seek qualified medical care for withdrawal concerns and qualified clinical care for trauma symptoms or worsening distress. If there is immediate danger or a medical emergency, contact local emergency services. Do not wait for an Anchor to respond.

The CONNECTED nine process pathway

Week	Process	Main practice
1	Choice & Awareness	Cost-benefit analysis and impact inventory
2	Openness & Ownership	Recovery compass and connection map
3	Needs & Self-Discovery	Five-needs inventory and ABC worksheet
4	Naming & Honesty	Pattern map and action-oriented sharing
5	Empowerment & Change	STOPP, WDEP, and an if-then urge plan
6	Connection & Accountability	Relationship impact inventory and repair readiness
7	Transformation & Repair	Safe repair plan and release exercise
8	Evaluation & Maintenance	Daily check-in, WDEP self-evaluation, and Anchor contact plan
9	Daily Growth & Service	Life-balance wheel, Eisenhower matrix, and 90-day plan

The two special topics deepen this same pathway: euphoric recall supports Sessions 1, 3, 5, and 8; trauma and present-moment coping support Sessions 3, 5, and 8. They do not add required sessions. Use the separate trauma companion for extended practice.

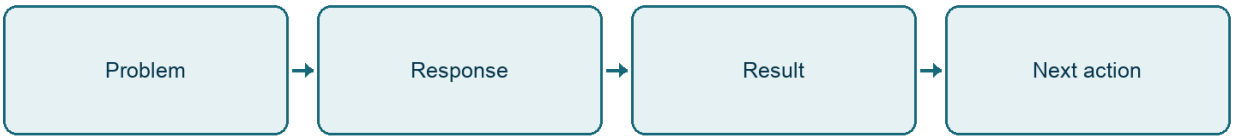

Fillable use: click a [Type here] area in Word to enter your response. Controls are unlocked and the document remains editable. You may also print the workbook and write on the lines. Add space as needed; do not include information you want to keep out of a saved file.

Session 4 Naming & Honesty

Guiding question: What truth am I ready to acknowledge safely?

Understand the process

Specific descriptions make change possible. 'I missed two commitments after using' gives more direction than 'I am hopeless.' Honesty can happen privately, on paper, or with a chosen safe person. Passing is always allowed. Action-oriented sharing keeps attention on learning and the next step rather than demanding a full personal history.

Worked example

Problem: Lee missed a planned call. Response: Lee avoided the phone because of embarrassment. Result: distance increased. Next action: send a short message acknowledging the missed call and offer a realistic time. Lee can share this pattern without naming another person.

Try it this week

Use the four-part share once, privately or with consent. Notice whether specific language reduces confusion.

You may keep your work private, use a fictional example, or pass. The next pages are practice, not a test.

Session 4 Guided practice

Practice tools: Pattern map and action-oriented sharing

Pattern map: cue or situation, thought, feeling, behavior, immediate result, later result. Where does the pattern repeat?

[Type here] _____

_____

Rewrite one global self-label as an observable description of behavior.

[Type here] _____

_____

What am I ready to name privately? What do I prefer not to share?

[Type here] _____

_____

Optional sharing draft: problem, response, result, next action. Use initials or a fictional example.

[Type here] _____

_____

Who is a safe Anchor for this topic, and what boundary will I state before sharing?

Session 4 Reflection and support

What happened or what problem am I working on?

[Type here] _____

What did I do, avoid, think, or feel in response?

[Type here] _____

What need, value, relief, connection, or outcome was I seeking?

[Type here] _____

What was the result for me and for others?

[Type here] _____

Is this response working? What might work better?

[Type here] _____

One realistic next action I am willing to take, and when:

[Type here] _____

Connection or Anchor or backup support I can use before I act:

[Type here] _____

What can I repair safely, learn from, or release?

[Type here] _____

Between-session practice: use problem → need → response → result → support → next action at least once. Record what you learn and revisit the plan without self-blame.

Meeting closing mantra

Connect before you act.
We choose.
We respond.
We understand.
We connect.
We release.
And then we choose again.
